From Description to Explanation: A Dynamic Approach to Understanding Culture

Culture is pervasive yet often unnoticed. While past research has primarily been descriptive, understanding culture requires a shift toward dynamic explanation. In response, my collaborators and I developed the dynamic constructivist approach, which examines how culture influences cognition, emotion, and behavior. In this talk, I will present research from my lab on racial essentialism, cultural mixing, and cultural attachment. Taken together, these findings offer deeper insights into the complex processes underlying cultural conflicts worldwide.
